SUSAN RICHARD NELSON, United States Magistrate Judge

The above-entitled matter comes before the undersigned United States Magistrate Judge on Defendant Bayer Corporation's Motion for Discovery Sanctions against Plaintiff Katie Moore (Doc. No. 16). This matter has been referred to the undersigned for a Report and Recommendation pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 636 and D. Minn. LR 72.1.

I. INTRODUCTION

Defendant Bayer Corporation ("Bayer") moves this Court to dismiss this action with prejudice as a sanction under PTO 149 and Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 37(b)(2) and 37(d) for Plaintiff Katie Moore's failure to appear for her duly noticed deposition on July 3, 2007, in St. Louis, Missouri. Section I.A.2 of PTO 149 provides, in relevant part:

d. Except for good cause shown, if a Plaintiff fails to appear for his/her scheduled deposition, such Plaintiff's claims will be dismissed with prejudice.

- e. If a party or its counsel does not intend to appear for a deposition, counsel for that party must provide written notice to the attorney who noticed the deposition at least 24 hours before the deposition is scheduled to commence. Absent a showing of good cause, counsel for a non-appearing party who fails to provide this notice will be liable for the fees of the court reporter.

On June 21, 2007, fully consistent with PTO 149, Bayer served a Notice of Deposition of Plaintiff Katie Moore upon Plaintiff's counsel of record to be taken on July 3, 2007, at the offices of Blackwell Sanders Peper Martin LLP in St. Louis, Missouri. Having received no notice of Plaintiff's intent not to appear, the deposition went forward as noticed. Neither Plaintiff nor Plaintiff's counsel appeared for the deposition. Counsel for Bayer created a record documenting Plaintiff's failure to appear, and fees for the court reporter's services were $133.20.

II. DISCUSSION

Bayer argues that Plaintiff has willfully violated PTO 149, which established mandatory procedures for case-specific discovery, and that Bayer is prejudiced by Plaintiff's failure to appear for a deposition. In order to adequately defend against Plaintiff's claims, Bayer argues that it is entitled to fundamental discovery regarding Plaintiff's use of Baycol; the nature, extent, and potential causes of Plaintiff's alleged injuries; and the extent of Plaintiff's alleged damages. Plaintiff did not respond to Bayer's motion.

Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 37 provides courts with broad discretion to impose sanctions for failure to comply with discovery orders, including the ultimate sanction of dismissal with prejudice. In pertinent part, the rule states that "[i]f a party . . . fails to obey an order to provide or permit discovery, including an order made under subdivision (a) of this rule . . . the court in which the action is pending may make such orders in regard to the failure as are just, [including] an order . . . dismissing the action or proceeding or any part thereof.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(b)(2)(C).

In the Eighth Circuit, dismissal may be considered as a sanction only where there is an order compelling discovery, willful violation of that order, and prejudice to the opposing party. Keefer v. Provident Life & Accident Ins. Co., 238 F.3d 937, 940 (8th Cir. 2000) (citation omitted). While a district court has discretion to impose discovery sanctions, such sanctions must be just and specifically related to the claim at issue. Id. (citations omitted). Before imposing dismissal, a court must consider whether a lesser sanction is appropriate under the circumstances, but need not impose the least onerous sanction available. Id. (citations omitted). The Court notes that the sanction of dismissal has been found appropriate in similar Baycol matters. See, e.g., Haines v. Bayer Corp., Civ. No. 03-4601 (MJD/SRN), slip. op. at 1 (D. Minn. May 23, 2007) (adopting Report and Recommendation of May 4, 2007).

In the present case, PTO 149 specifically and clearly calls for the dismissal of an action if Plaintiff fails to appear for her deposition. Further, the Court finds that Bayer has shown the requisite willfulness and prejudice. It is undisputed that Bayer is entitled to discover fundamental facts regarding Plaintiff’s usage of Baycol, injuries, and damages, by way of deposition. Plaintiff’s failure to appear at her scheduled deposition, without providing alternative dates for a rescheduled deposition, makes it virtually impossible for Bayer to prepare an adequate defense to her claims. Furthermore, Plaintiff’s deliberate failure to attend her deposition demonstrates a lack of interest in this case and an abandonment of her claims. Hence, a sanction of dismissal of Plaintiff's claims is appropriate under these circumstances.

This Court must consider, of course, whether a lesser sanction against Plaintiff would cure the prejudice to Bayer. However, because Plaintiff essentially refuses to be deposed, the Court finds in its discretion that any lesser sanction would be futile. It is therefore recommended that Bayer's motion for the sanction of dismissal be granted.

Section I.A.2.e of PTO 149 provides that, absent a showing of good cause, counsel for a non-appearing party who fails to provide notice to Bayer's counsel that Plaintiff may not appear for his or her deposition will be liable for the fees of the court reporter. Plaintiff's counsel here clearly should have notified Bayer that Plaintiff would not attend the deposition. Based on these facts, the Court concludes that incurring $133.20 in court reporter's fees to document Plaintiff's failure to appear is not excessive. PTO 149 places the burden on Plaintiff's counsel to demonstrate good cause to avoid liability for the fees, and Plaintiff's counsel has not done so.

Accordingly, based on all the files, records, and proceedings herein, IT IS HEREBY RECOMMENDED that:

1. Defendant Bayer Corporation's Motion for Discovery Sanctions against Plaintiff Katie Moore (Doc. No. 16) be GRANTED;
2. Plaintiff Katie Moore's claims be DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE; and
3. Plaintiff's counsel be required to pay the sum of $133.20 to Bayer Corporation within ten days of the District Court's Order should the District Court adopt this Report and Recommendation.
